CORAM : HONOURABLE MR.JUSTICE D.H.WAGHELA

Date : 01/11/2007

ORAL JUDGMENT :

1. By the present petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, petitioner has sought the relief of order dated 12.03.2007 of his detention being set aside. That impugned order dated 12.03.2007 is issued by District Magistrate, Navsari in exercise of his powers conferred under the provisions of section 3 of the Gujarat Prevention of Anti-Social Activities Act, 1985 ("PASA" for short) on the basis that the petitioner was found to be repeatedly indulging in anti-social activity of bootlegging and an offence being III-C.R.No. 131 of 2007 under the Prohibition Act was registered on 10.02.2007 against the petitioner in Jalalpor Police Station of Navsari in which 612 small bottles of liquor is stated to have been seized as muddamal. According to the grounds of detention supplied with the impugned order, even as the aforesaid offence was being investigated, other actions under the Prohibition Act were not possible and alcohol being injurious to health, there was likelihood of danger to public health on account of consumption of illicit liquor in which the petitioner was dealing. It is further stated that possibility of the petitioner continuing in anti-social activities could not be denied and hence it was found to be necessary to detain the petitioner after considering the documents and statements which were relied upon and supplied to the petitioner.

2. Even as the present petition was admitted on 22.03.2007 and Rule was made returnable on 11.07.2007, affidavit-in-reply of the detaining authority, executed on 30.10.2007, was submitted to this court and copy thereof supplied to the petitioner only on 01.11.2007 when the matter was taken up for final hearing. It is stated in that affidavit, inter alia, that prima facie involvement of the petitioner was established in the offence registered against him. It is further stated: "7*. ....I say that though there is only one offence was registered against the detenu, from the documents relating to the same, it is very clearly disclosed that the detenu has indulged in anti-social activities which are prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Therefore there are sufficient materials to arrive at the subjective satisfaction that the detenue is a bootlegger and she is indulging in the activities which are prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Therefore, in view of the settled legal position, even though there is no past history and even in case of a solitary incidence, if there are sufficient materials to arrive at the subjective satisfaction that a person is indulged in anti-social activities which are prejudicial to the maintenance of public order, then the order of detention can be passed against her. Therefore, after carefully* considering all the relevant materials placed before me, the facts and circumstances of the case as well as the legal provisions applicable to the facts of the case, as I was subjectively satisfied that the detenue is a bootlegger as defined under section 2(b) of the PASA Act and her anti-social activities have the potential to disturb the public order and therefore it is necessary to detain her immediately with a view to prevent her from acting in any manner prejudicial to the detention against the detenue and the same is legal, valid and proper...."

3. In the above facts, it was sought to be argued on behalf of the respondents that danger to public health caused by the activity of bootlegging by the petitioner substantiated the assumption of likelihood of public order being adversely affected and, for that reason, the subjective satisfaction about the necessity of preventing the petitioner from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order and the impugned order directing his detention were legal and justified.

4. As held by this court in Amarbhai Kanjibhai Nayak v. Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad City & Ors. [1993 (3) G.L.R. 2703] and in Sohanlal Surajaram Visnoi v. State of Gujarat

[2004 (2) G.L.R. 1051], solitary incident of violation of prohibition law, normally, without anything more, would not be a problem to the maintenance of public order and, for such solitary incident, no person can be detained under the Act. It was also seen from analysis of the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 3 and the Explanation appended thereto that the presumption of likelihood of public order being adversely affected could arise, if danger were caused to life or public health, but such danger has to be grave or widespread for the mandatory presumption of likelihood of public order being adversely affected. In the facts of the present case, nothing from the material on record could substantiate or justify the presumption of grave or widespread danger to life or public health and hence, the presumption of likelihood of public order being adversely affected could not have been legally availed by the detaining authority for the purpose of arriving at the subjective satisfaction.

5. Therefore, in the facts and circumstances, the impugned order dated 12.03.2007 of preventive detention is found and held to be unsustainable in law and set aside with the direction that the petitioner, Manishaben w/o Motibhai Somabhai Tandel, shall be set at liberty forthwith unless required to be detained in connection with any other case. Rule is made absolute accordingly. Direct service is permitted.
